EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

THE hearing in the bribery cases at Washington is slowly proceeding.

THIS country has more than its share of attractions just now. Among them are Patti, Nilsson and Langtry.

FOREMAN DICKSON, if he is making an ass of himself just to obtain notoriety, should desist. He has succeeded already.

WEDNESDAY, November 1, was founders' day at Easton and the founders, the corner-stones and cornices of Lafayette were as merry as a marriage belle. Science and music and athletics all took a hand in giving the boys another good send off in their race for wisdom and power in the future.

A HORRIBLE tragedy was committed in New York City on Tuesday, October 31, a refined and elegant woman murdering her three children and then taking her own life. Her life was thought to be perfectly happy and she had everything that heart can desire. Temporary insanity is supposed to be the cause of the terrible act.

REV. THOMAS GUARD, of Baltimore, died a short time ago, but the strain upon our editorial space prevented mention of it heretofore. He will be remembered by all Methodists and also by many citizens of Bellefonte who heard his lecture in the Court House during the period of Rev. George Miller's residence in this place as pastor of the M. E. church. Rev. Guard's death is greatly deplored by Methodists in all parts of the country.

WHAT IS CLOTURE? Literally, a fencing in, and as applied to the present session of the British Parliament is equivalent to the American moving the "previous question." It represents Mr. Gladstone's project of defense against the threatened dilatory measures of the Irish members. It is a French word and will not be found in the standard English dictionaries, but as it is a one word substitute for two or three other words it will probably be adopted on both sides of the ocean.

MR. WILLIAM DICKSON, having come before the court in answer to the rule charging him with contempt and explained that he didn't mean anything by his impudent epistle to the foreman of the grand jury, has been discharged and will wait his turn to be investigated with what patience he may be possessor of. Mr. Dickson will probably conclude before he gets through that he has been too anxious to be investigated in his own way and on his own terms. Courts are liable to proceed according to law in such matters, regardless of the wishes of parties who may desire them to do otherwise.

THE newspapers of Texas state that very successful efforts have been made to raise Angora goats on a large scale in that state. In the western parts of the state there are, it is stated, millions of acres of rocky, hilly undergrowth of live oak that will not support one sheep to twenty acres, one cow to forty acres, or one horse to fifty acres, and are, in fact, utterly worthless, except for the use of goats. These animals can be herded in large flocks with perfect safety and to advantage. A stock raiser in Western Texas has one herd of 2,000 graded Angoras, herded by one Mexican. In a report to the National association of wool manufacturers at Boston, Mass., he says that his goats "can be located in summer eight miles from their watering place, and drink once in three days, returning to camp the same day—a great item in a dry country."

A Sweeping Democratic Victory.

The Keystone and the Empire States

Go Democratic by Very Large Pluralities.

Butler Elected in Massachusetts—Readjuster Triumph in Virginia—Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Iowa Remain in the Republican Camp.

The Elections.

The result in the State cannot but be regarded as a calamity. Beaver, one of the purest and best men who ever stepped into the public arena, has suffered defeat. He has the consciousness, however, that he battled against great odds and did his part nobly. If people all over the State had known his noble character as did the people of Centre county the result would have been a great victory for him. He would have given the State a pure and able administration.

The State of New York fell an easy prey into the hands of the enemy, the Democratic majority reaching 75,000. Virginia is carried by the republicans. Democratic gains were made in New Hampshire. Benjamin F. Butler is elected Governor of Massachusetts. Iowa shows an increased Democratic vote. Rhode Island maintains its Republican strength and most of the Southern states exhibit their usual Democratic majorities.

Combustible Theatre Buildings.

The loss occasioned Manager Abbey and the disappointment of Mrs. Langtry in the burning of Abbey Park Theatre, on Monday evening, October 31, has call forth many criticisms in regard to the prevailing style of building theaters and almost as many suggestions in regard to improvements in the architecture of such buildings, which will be invaluable to our townsman, D. G. Bush, Esq., when he begins the new theatrical structure which he is contemplating. The Philadelphia Times, perhaps, views the subject in the most sensible light when it remarks: "It is easy to find fault with almost everything, and there can be no question that the present style of building and furnishing theatres is very open to condemnation. All thoughts of safety in case of fire or accident seem sacrificed in the desire for mere show. But beauty and the gratification it gives to the habitues of our theatres are a very large element in the success of theatrical performances, and it is more difficult than at first sight appears to suggest any feasible plan for actual improvement under existing circumstances. If each theatre had a block of itself architects might be encouraged to make rich designs, consistant with numerous roomy exits, but where theatres are crowded into such space as they are now it is only the practical architect that can realize the enormous difficulties to be overcome.

"On the whole, perhaps, accidents do not occur in theatres more frequently than in churches or other buildings used as frequently as the theatres are used. This is not an apology for existing deficiencies, but simply a hint that the difficulties in the way of any change for the better are something deeper than many people consider.

'It does not matter either how many laws are made looking to provisions for fire extinguishers in theatres. Every enterprise is run in its own interest and it is perhaps impossible to keep up an effective fire department in each theatre. The theatre is a place of amusement, not a hose company. Everything that can be done to protect human life ought to be done. But it looks as if nothing short of pulling down all the theatres in all our cities and some other buildings around them and then building anew on some entirely new plan would be of any avail, and it is difficult to say what that new plan could or should be."

WASHINGTON society, which went into mourning in a very decorous manner for President Garfield, has finally consented to restrain its grief and is preparing to enter into the the gayeties of the coming winter with a decided relish. There have been a number of fine residences built within the city by prominent and wealthy people during the past year, and many people are at present looking for houses to rent large enough for reception purposes. The Capital City is fast becoming a most delightful place of residence and will continue to improve in that respect at a rapid rate. The only drawback to the perfect felicity of Washington society people at present seems to be the steady refusal of President Arthur to select a mistress for the White House from among its many fair daughters. If he should conclude to make a selection some time perhaps the great mass of the unselected would not be in any more amiable frame of mind, however.

REV. GEORGE O. BARNES, the "Mountain Preacher" of Kentucky, is making a sensation in Norwich, Conn., with his quaint and original style of preaching. He is very popular with the masses, although he says much that does not accord with the orthodox New England faith. From what we read of his belief we are of opinion that it is a much more "free and easy" style of marching Zionward than is proscribed in the Bible, but we hope he will gain many converts, nevertheless.

A TEMPERANCE FANATIC.

Kind friend, put your glass on the table
Untasted, and listen to me.
You say I'm a temperance fanatic—
Mayhap I have reason to be.
It is years since we parted at College.
Let us talk over times passed away,
And see of companions and classmates
Who's dead, and who's living to-day.

There were ten of us came off together,
Here are two—now what of the eight?
But a few days ago I saw William—
He who beat us all in debate.
He was rich, you know; now he is needy,
I asked where his fortune all went;
He tipped up a glass as he answered,
"I drank it down so—every cent."

Then Ralph, who bore the first honor,
He took to the bar as you know,
But another bar claimed his attention,
And business progressed rather slow.
He died of the tremens, poor fellow!
His talents would rank with the first,
And to think of his dying ere forty—
A pray to the demon of thirst.

Then Bob, irrepressible Robert—
Who always took lead in our fun,
The gayest and wildest of fellows!
Yet the kindest and best-hearted one.
Well, he went to prison—life sentence,
He took too much liquor one day,
And a spree that began in good feeling
Ended up with a stabbing affray.

Then there is that young prince of topers,
That high-headed Archibald West.
He never was known to be tipsy—
Yet he drank more than all the rest.
Ah! he is reaping the crop of his sowing,
His son loves the cup, and has not
A stomach of steel like his father,
And the boy is already a sot.

I made Tom a visit last summer;
You remember Tom, quiet and mild,
Well he makes the most fretful of husbands,
I pity his wife and his child.
He's pleasant enough in the evening,
As he sips his hot toddy and ale,
But all the forenoon he's a terror,
Cross, head-achy, snappish, and pale.

And George—who was called Claus Adonis,
Who turned woman's head with a smile,
That straight-limbed and graceful Apollis,
Who took a dram "once in a while."
Oh, Charles, you would scarcely believe it,
But the fellow's a sight to behold;
His nose is as red as a lobster,
He's bloated, and blear-eyed and old.

Then Herbert—he's traveling somewhere!
But one more remains—Henry Lee,
And you know from the deck of a steamer
He fell, and was lost out at sea.
A friend who was with him since told me
That Hank was light-headed from drink,
And that's how he lost his balance;
'Twas the general opinion I think.

So, Charles, when I name o'er our classmates,
Who all tipped the glass now and then,
I think what bliss might have been theirs,
If they had been temperance men.
You I own, seem untouched by drink's dangers,
Yet your future we neither can scan,
And I really feel safer for being
A very fanatical man.

Ruth's Choice.

A very pleasant little group gathered about Mrs. Damon's cosy breakfast table that bright spring morning. First, Mrs. Damon herself, fair, fat and—well, no matter about the age—ten years a widow with not over plenty of means, and the mother of three girls: Miss Laura, the oldest and the beauty; Miss Isabel, a beauty also, and a musician beside; and little Ruth, who was regarded by the family as neither very brilliant nor very beautiful, but very useful to help mother and the sole servant with the household affairs.

This morning there was an extra one in the group, Mrs. Damon's brother Edward, an improvident youth who had run away to California years ago and just come back, not much the better, as Mrs Damon could discover, for his long wanderings.

"We never need have expected poor Uncle Ed to make anything," she remarked to her daughters the night after his sudden return. "He says he has saved enough to buy himself a little house somewhere, but I suppose that is all. I'm sorry, for I did hope he would have been able to do something for you girls. But I suppose that we must make the best of it, and treat him as well as we can. I do hope he won't try to buy a house in the city, for it won't help you to have shabby relations close by. I shall advise him, as his means are small, to buy over on the Jersey shore."

Uncle Ed received this advice and consented to adopt it, with a sly twinkle in his grey eyes, which Mrs. Damon did not notice. She rather expected to be asked to assist in the selection of the little place, but as Uncle Ed did not invite her to accompany him, she did not offer her services.

At the table this morning Uncle Ed announced that the little house was ready for occupation and that he was going to take possession.

"And now I want a housekeeper," he said, in a slow way. "Won't you lend me one of your girls, Mary?"

Everybody looked up as Uncle Ed made this astonishing request. Laura blushed with vexation; Isabel shrugged her pretty shoulders and smiled, and even little Ruth looked astonished.

"Of course you needn't do the rough work," continued Uncle Ed. "I'll hire a kitchen girl for that; but I thought I'd rather have one of my own relations to look after things. You see I'll not have many years to live, and I would like to be among my own kin."

Nobody answered, so poor Uncle Ed went on slowly—

"I'll tell you what I'll do. If one of your girls will go over to my home and live there with me, I'll give her her board and clothing while she stays, and whenever she marries I'll give her what I can for a set-out. Now I'll leave you to think over it. I'm going over to-day, and when I come back this evening you can have your choice made."

After Uncle Ed left the room there was a chorus of exclamations.

Isabel leaned back in her chair and laughed until she was tired.

"Wouldn't I look pretty playing the piano in Uncle Ed's six by nine parlor, with an ingrain carpet and wooden chairs?" she exclaimed.

"And wouldn't I feel like asking Col. Richardson to call on me in some little mufly, stuffy Jersey habitation?" cried Laura, indignantly.

"It's a pity, I know," said Mrs. Damon, "but I don't see but what one of you ought to go. It would relieve us; and you know Uncle Ed would dress you—he said so."

"Dress!" cried Laura, indignantly. "Yes; calico gowns and cotton shawls, and maybe a cheap alpaca for Sunday. Thank you; not for me. Let Ruth go; they'll suit her.

"If ma is willing, I will go," said Ruth, speaking for the first time. "If Uncle Ed feels lonely and wants one of us, we ought to go and stay with him; and I am willing to go."

"Well, don't you suppose you would be best for him?" said Mrs Damon, thoughtfully. "It would leave more, too, for the other girls, and then when they marry, they can help you."

"You forget Uncle Ed has promised her a 'set-out,' said Isabel, with a scornful laugh.

And Laura added—

"A pretty 'set-out,' no doubt. I don't suppose, after his house is furnished, Uncle Ed will have fifty dollars in the world. Go along, Ruth, I wish you joy in the bargain."

"Laura, Isabel, hush!" said Mrs. Damon, reprovingly. "If Ruth has a mind to go you ought not to put obstacles in her way. Let her do as she likes."

When Uncle Ed came back, it was announced to him Ruth had decided to superintend his establishment.

"Thank you, dear," he said, laying his hand on her head. "I'll try to make you as comfortable as I can. Will you be ready to go over day after to-morrow?

"Yes, sir," answered Ruth.

The girls had a great deal of sport about her going next day, but little Ruth, whose heart was warm with pity for her lonely old uncle, held firm and was ready to go early the next morning.

Uncle Ed invited the rest to go over and see her installed in her new home. Laura haughtily declined, but Mrs. Damon and Isabel resolved to go. Isabel enjoyed the anticipation of turning up her pretty nose at Ruth's humble quarters.

They crossed the river, and Uncle Ed told the ladies to wait at the office a few moments till he found some sort of a carriage.

"He hired a very handsome one, I must confess," was Isabel's mental comment, as they were seated a little later in a stylish carriage with its splendid horses.

Seated in a corner, Miss Isabel enjoyed the ride very much, commenting on all the handsome residences they passed.

"What an elegant place!" she cried, as they drew near a fine old mansion in the midst of stately grounds, with a gleam of marble statuary among the trees, and a sparkling fountain flinging its bright drops in the air upon a well-kept lawn.

"We will stop here," said Uncle Ed, as the coachman drew up his horses.

"Here!" Why, do you know these people? Who owns this place?" asked Isabel.

"I do," returned Uncle Ed, quietly, as he assisted her to alight.

"You!" cried Isabel, with at least three exclamation points after the word.

Mrs. Damon stopped short on the carriage steps to say:

"Is it possible, Edward?"

"Yes, it is even so," returned Uncle Ed, smiling. "Come, Ruthie dear, this is the home I have brought you to; let us go in, and see how you like it."

The surprised party followed him through the grounds to the door, where they were admitted by a neat colored boy.

"Good morning, John," said Ed. "Here is your new mistress," presenting Ruth, as John bowed low, after the manner of a polite darkey, to welcome the young lady.

"The rooms are all in order, John?" asked Uncle Edward.

"Yes, sah," replied John.

"Very well, we will take a look at them. Come, ladies."

He led them through lofty rooms, most elegantly appointed, pausing at length in Ruth's own chamber, a lovely room, all soft drab, blue silver, and fit for a queen or a lady.

"And here," he said, opening another door into a room furnished with rose color, "is a room for your sisters, when they may choose to come and stay with you. I know you don't like to climb stairs."

"But—but—Edward," said Mrs. Damon, who was the first to recover her voice, "we are astonished beyond measure. I thought you said you had only made a little out yonder."

Uncle Ed. smiled.

"Well, I did make a little, Mary—and I never was given much to bragging, you know. Beside, I had a fancy to see whether Uncle Edward poor and Edward rich were to to be considered the same. You have all been kind"—Mrs. Damon winced a little, for she knew it had only been a pitying sort of kindness—"and my little Ruthie here, most of all, for she has come to make my home bright. I'll take good care of her, and give her a hundred dollars a month for pocket money; and when she marries I intend to settle twenty thousand dollars on her for a wedding present.

Isabel sank down in a chair, speechless with astonishment, while Mrs. Damon exclaimed:

"Goodness gracious! I can hardly believe it yet, Edward."

"You'll get used to it, Mary. Now, Ruthie dear, take your sister to your room and take off her things. Mary, you and Isabel must stay all day; I will send you home in my carriage."

Little Ruth, as she moves happily about "poor Edward's" magnificent home, feels very happy. She was kind, generous and honest, and now she has her reward.

A Bear at His Heels.

The Telegram noted a few days since the fact that William Wilkinson and J. L. Merrick, officials of the Hudson River Water Power and Paper Company, had started for the Adirondacks where they intended to devote two or three weeks' time in hunting bears. Last Friday a trail was started, and in following it the two hunters became separated. In a short time Merrick heard a shot fired in the direction he supposed Wilkinson to be, which was at once followed by the most unearthly yells he ever heard. Hastening to the locality he took in the situation at a glance. A shot from Wilkinson's rifle had evidently wounded one of the black beasts, and angered by pain the animal had turned upon Wilkinson and was giving chase, while Wilkinson was running for dear life. The ferocious animal gained rapidly upon him, and as he stumbled and fell to the ground two or three times the distance between the pursued and the pursuer was soon reduced to nothing. As the animal had Wilkinson once almost within his embrace, Merrick's heart nearly failed him, for he had followed on with a hope that an opportunity would be afforded him to dispatch the animal and thus save his now nearly scared to death friend.

Once the animal was close enough to bite off a piece of Wilkinson's coat tail, and again his teeth were fastened into the bottom of one of his pantaloon legs, which of course had no succumb to the wrath of the infuriated animal. Thus piece by piece of clothing was snatched from the person of the pursued hunter, until after an half hour's chase an opening in the woods was reached and a rude dwelling house appeared before the eyes of Wilkinson in the clearing a few rods ahead. For this building he made a straight line, and in less than three minutes he fell over the threshold almost breathless and nearly exhausted. It proved to be a farmer's abode, and the kind-hearted ruralist lost no time in applying proper restoratives and rendering all the aid in his power for the comfort of his suddenly-acquired guest.

As soon as Wilkinson was sufficiently recovered to notice the arrival of his friend Merrick he seized the latter's rifle (his own having been dropped in the chase) and vowed he would kill that bear if it took him until snow flew. The farmer at once assured him there were no bears in that vicinity. "What do you mean, sir?" Why, I was just chased into your house by one of the largest bears I ever saw or ever heard of. Don't tell me there are no bears here." "Why, my dear sir," said the farmer, "that bear that followed you to this place was one of my black Berkshire hogs. I have got over two hundred of them out there in this piece of woods."

A Nice Little Girl.

Little Lucy's brother Charles promised to buy her some ice cream every Saturday if she would keep her hair nicely brushed during the week.

One day Lucy and her brother were going to the place where the ice cream was kept. Lucy was trotting along, holding Charley's hand. She heard a strange noise in the street near them. Looking she saw two boys with a little ecrue dog. One boy had tied a string to the poor little dog's tail, and on the other end of the string was a deserted oyster can.

"Oh, brother!" said Lucy, "see what the wicked boys are doing."

And then the tears filled her eyes, because she felt sorry for the dog.

Then Charles asked the boy to let the dog go. They would not do this, but said they would sell him the dog for twenty-five cents.

"If we buy the dog, Lucy, we can have no ice cream, for I have only twenty-five cents in my pocket," said Charles.

Then Lucy was very sad, for she loved ice cream dearly, but still she knew it was her duty to prevent the dog from suffering.

So for a moment she was silent, and then looking up to her brother, she said in her pretty way:

"You kick in the ribs of the boys, dear brother, and I will hustle the pup up the alley."

And so Lucy had her ice cream after all.

A contemporary asks: "How shall women carry their purses to frustrate the thieves?" Why, carry them empty. Nothing frustrates a thief more than to snatch a woman's purse, after following her half a mile, and then find it contains nothing but a recipe for spiced peaches and a faded photograph of her grandmother.

"Edward, what do I hear? that you have disobeyed your grandmother, who told you just now not to jump down those steps!" "Grandma did not tell us not to, papa; she only came to the door and said: 'I wouldn't jump down those steps, boys;' and I shouldn't think she would—an old women like her!"

Subscribers who find cross-bones and skull with crest of metallic burial casket drawn in blood on the wrapper of their paper will know that their subscription has expired and that something has got to be done.

Not a Fast Train.

On some of the Western roads they attach to a freight and call it "mixed." It isn't in the order of things that such trains should travel very rapidly, and sometimes there is considerable growling among the "traffic."

"Are we most there, conductor?" asked a nervous man for the hundredth time. "Remember that my wife is sick and I am anxious."

"We'll get there on time," replied the conductor stolidly.

Half an hour later the man approached him again.

"I guess she's dead now," said he, mournfully, "but I'd give you a little something extra if you could manage to catch up with the funeral. Maybe she won't be so decomposed but what I would recognize her."

The conductor growled at him and the man subsided.

"Conductor," said he after an hour's silence, "Conductor, if the wind isn't dead ahead, I wish you would put on some steam. I'd like to see where my wife is buried before the tomb-stone tumbles to pieces! Put yourself in my place for a moment."

The conductor shook him off and the man relapsed into profound melancholy.

"I say, conductor," said he, after a long pause, "I've got a note coming due in three months. Can't you fix it so as to rattle along a little."

"If you come near me again I'll knock you down!" shouted the conductor savagely.

The nervous man regarded him sadly and went to his seat. Two hours later the conductor saw him chatting gayly and laughing heartily with a brother victim, and approached him.

"Don't feel so badly about your wife's death."

"Time heals all wounds," sighed the nervous man.

"And you are not so particular about the note," sneered the conductor.

"Not now. That's all right. Don't worry. I've been figuring up, and I find that the note has been outlawed since I spoke to you last."

Leave-Taking.

Not all have learned the fine art of leave-taking in an appropriate manner. When you are about to depart, do so at once, gracefully and politely, with no dallying. Don't say, "It's about time I was going," and then settle back and talk on aimlessly for another ten minutes. Some people have such a tiresome habit. They will even rise, and stand about the room in various attitudes keeping their hosts also standing, and then by an effort succeed in getting as far as the hall, when a new thought strikes them. They brighten up visibly and stand for some minutes longer, saying nothing of importance, but keeping every one in a restless, nervous state. After the door is opened the prolonged leave-taking begins, and everybody in general and in particular is invited to call. Very likely a last though strikes the departing visitor which his friend must risk a cold to hear to the end. What a relief when the door is finally closed! There is no disguising the fact that they are truly glad he has at last gone. Don't do that way. Make your leave-taking generally short. There is no need of being offensively abrupt, but when you are ready to go—go.

The Next Congress Safe.

There is hardly a possible doubt that the next Senate will be Republican. There is hardly a possible doubt that the next House will also be Republican. The result in Ohio is likely to prove a blessing after all. Republicans everywhere see the folly of internal dissension in the face of the enemy, and the necessity for union on the eve of a great battle wherein the great issues of free elections, an honest count, and protection to labor are involved. They see that whatever chance there may be for necessary reform must be sought within the party, and not from without, and that there is no earthly sense in biting one's nose to spite one's face. The advices from North to South are most encouraging, and those advices are conservative and reliable. It is within the truth to state that the Republican majority in the next House will exceed that of the present. But none the less is it the duty of every Republican to work with renewed zeal every hour until sunset on election day, especially for Congressional candidates of his party.

Kind Words to Democrats.

If you are weak or languid, vote the Republican ticket.

If your flesh is flabby and your complexion sallow, vote the Republican ticket.

If you have malaria, vote the Republican ticket.

If worn down with care, vote the Republican ticket.

If you have got the blues, vote the Republican ticket.

If you have kept late hours and been dissipated vote the Republican ticket.

If you feel old before your time, vote the Republican ticket.

If life has become a burden and you have gloomy forebodings, vote the Republican ticket.

If you need toning up, vote the Republican ticket.

If you drop Democracy and lay hold on Republicanism you will feel as if you had a new lease of life.

That feeling of languor and debility that follows physical exertion, removed by using Brown's Iron Bitters.

He Just Talked Her into It.

The other day when Bridget, the valiant, was engaged, Mrs. Jones answered the door-bell herself and found a glib, silver-tongued agent had taken possession of her steps and was checking something in his memorandum book when she answered his fluent ring.

"Is your mamma in, miss?" he asked, with a pensive smile.

Mrs. Jones was rather taken aback. She was so accustomed on such occasions to the stereotyped question, "Is the lady of the house at home?" that she hardly knew what to say.

"I see she is not," continued the stranger, with a look of keen disappointment overclouding his face. "I had wished to see her in regard to a cosmetic I sell. You, with your fresh, youthful complexion would hardly need it."

"You can't sell anything here," said Mrs. Jones, recovering herself: "we never buy from agents."

"No! Well, I'm sorry; for consumption has claimed me for its own," said the man, with a melancholy cough. Are you nearly out of Bibles? I'm trying to do a little good in the world before I leave it by selling the best and cheapest revision of the sacred—"

"No! I don't want any Bibles," snapped Mrs. J., "and I'll be much obliged to you if you'll take your things off the steps so I can close the door."

"Certainly, certainly, Miss—youth and beauty; and yet there is a sad, dreamy look that tells of biliousness; now these liver pills—"

"Will you go?" exclaimed Mrs. Jones, as she tried to get the door closed. "Oh, if I only had a broom!"

"Broom! broom!" cried the stranger with a dramatic gesture; "who says br-r oom? not this young and lovely being in the heart of a great city. Brooms, my dear young lady, belong to the dark ages. You never, never should wield so common an implement. Let me sell you a carpet sweeper—an invention that will remove dust of ages without fatigue or discomfort to yourself—a patent-hinged, self guiding, nickle-plated, premium medal carpet sweeper. Lovely creature, don't disfigure those graceful hands with a broom, when for a few paltry dollars you can buy a carpet sweeper."

"I couldn't help it, Jeptha," explained Mrs. Jones when her husband fell over the carpet sweeper upon his return home.

"I didn't want it any more than a cat wants two tails, but you ought to have heard the creature talk. I believe I'd have bought a camelopard if he'd had one for sale and asked me to; he just talked me into it."

But she never told Jones what he said.

A Tale for Toddlers.

After Lucy returned from Boarding School and began Laying Pipe to secure the Young Man of whom I told you in my last number, she coaxed her Papa to let her take lessons from a Singing Master, and pretty soon she could Vocalize quite well, and loved dearly to sit in the Parlor and Turn Herself Loose at the piano. Lucy was very partial to Sentimental songs, and seemed to be a Little Gone on those that had rather sappy titles and the words to which did not mean anything in particular. She would rustle around the Music Stand for awhile, and then Come To The Surface with a lot of such Truck as "Angel Voices Now Are Calling," "Darling, Kiss My Eyelids Down," "When the Brown is On the Heather," and so forth. To hear Lucy singing "Tread Lightly, for Mother is Sleeping," while her Mamma was out in the yard with her mouth full of Clothespins was worth quite a journey, but Lucy never seemed to think of the Incongruity of such proceedings. She would Wrestle the piano every day, while both her Parents were working hard, and never think that Idleness is the Mother of Matinees and that the Singing Girl Gathers No Boss.

One beautiful evening she was Having Her Hoot as usual, and had got far enough into the pile of music so that she was singing Sentimental songs. Finally she started in on one that begins: "I Am Sitting in the Glen," when suddenly her Papa, who has been trying to read the Paper, turned to his Wife and said: "How much do you think it would cost, mother, to move a fair-sized glen about nine miles, and fix things so that it couldn't come back?"

Then Lucy began to cry and said that her Papa was a Brute.

To Physicians.

We do not find fault, reproach or condemn the practice of any regular physician—this is not our mission—but we do claim if he were to add Peruna to his prescriptions as directed in our book on the "Ills of Life" (and furnished gratuitously by all druggists), he would cure all his patients.

OSWEGO, Potter County, Pa.

DR. HARTMAN—Dear Sir: The small ulcers are all healed, and the two large ones are not more than half as large as they were. I am feeling quite well. People say Peruna and Manalin are doing a miracle. I do not take nearly so much opium as I did before. MRS. ELLEN MAYNARD.

The wealth and greatness of England, which is held up to admiring eyes by the Free Trade Democracy, is the wealth and greatness of her aristocrats and merchant princes, not of the farmers, the artisan, the mechanic, or the laborer in any field. It is the wealth of the few gained by the degradation of the many.

A new reading: Truth is stranger than fish stories.

All Sorts.

It is a good thing to laugh; beasts can weep when they suffer, but they cannot laugh.

A pig was never known to wash, but a great many people have seen the pig iron.

In view of the approach of Thanksgiving, the farmer now treats his turkeys with satirical consideration.

A fife and drum corps is one of the terrors of civilization and a perpetual foe to "tired nature's sweet restorer."

The ablest liar is not the man who tells the biggest lie, but the one who can judge just how much the listener will stand.

Foresight: A—"Why have you marked the birthdays of all your friends in your almanac?" B—"So as to know when not to call on them."

Tell a woman that she looks picturesque in her new hat, and she is as well pleased as if you had called her beautiful.

An Eastern paper wants to know "where the hats go." The big ones go to the theatre, and prevent people from seeing the stage.

All attempts to invent a spark arrester for locomotives have failed, simply because no genius has thought of trying a pretty woman on top of the smoke-stack.

"Hadn't I better pray for rain to-day, deacon?" said a Binginghampton minister, Sunday. "Not to-day, domine. I think," was the prudent reply; "the wind isn't right."

Inquisitiveness rebuked: Mistress (to applicant for cook's position:) "Why did you leave your last place?" Applicant: "You're very inquisitive, marm. I didn't ax you what for yer last cook left you."

Unwilling to lose time: On the Rue St. Lazare the other day a chair was seen on which lay a hat with the following notice: "Please don't forget the poor beggar, who is just taking his breakfast."

An Indiana State-prison convict says that his downward course began by trying to beat 2 40 with a three-minute horse. It looks as though some of our most respected citizens were headed for State prison.

An exchange prints a long article about "Courting in the Last Century." It has no interest for the man whose courting days are over. He'd rather know something about courting in the next century.

Fashionable young ladies now wear quizzing glasses on one eye after the style of English fops. They don't care so much about seeing as the do about being seen. Hence, anything to attract attention.

Something for the clergy to remember: When Phocion was asked if he were engaged in meditation he replied: "Yes; I am considering whether I cannot shorten what I have to say of the Athenians."

In the way of thanks: Young lady, writing a love-letter for the kitchen maid—"That's about enough, now isn't it?" Kitchen maid—"One thing more, Miss; just say please excuse bad spellin and writin."

I desire to master some musical instrument but do not wish to make myself a nuisance in my neighborhood; what instrument would you advise me to select?—George. Get a jewsharp.

A hotel keeper announces that he has added "a celebrated gas stewing machine" to his establishment. We shouldn't think it would improve gas to stew it; but there may be some persons who like it that way.

"The bees are swarming, and there's no end to them," said Farmer Jones, coming in the house. His boy George entered the house a second afterward, and said there was "an end to one of them, and it was hot, too."

A Providence woman found that whipping did not subdue her son, and so she made him drink a quart of dish water. As he was still obdurate she burned his tongue with a red-hot poker. He is now in a hospital and she in jail.

Slight Mistake. Pedestrian, who has dropped a penny in front of a poor blind man"—"Why, you humbug, you're not blind." Beggar—"Not I, sir. If the card says I am, they must have given me the wrong one. I'm deaf and dumb."

Calling names: A neighbor complained to an Austin clergyman that the latter's little boy was throwing stones at the neighbor's house. "I don't know what to do with that boy. The devil himself can't break that boy of throwing stones. I've tried faithfully."

We read frequently of some person whose hair has turned white in a single night, through grief or fear, but the white haired man who goes into a barber shop and comes out in half an hour with hair and whiskers as black as a raven's wing never gets a line in the paper.

Railroad time-table: "When did the first train leave Austin for San Antonio?" asked a stranger at the railway depot of Gilhooly. "The first train left for San Antonio when the railroad was completed between the two cities; that was about two years ago. You don't expect to go over on it, do you?"

"Look heah, 'squire, dar's a nigger in Galveston what's been sassin's me; supposin' I just maul the life outen him?" The lawyer replied: "You would be apt to get your neck stretched." "Now, boss, you is jokin'. What do white folks care fer one nigger moah or less now the census is done took?"

Thanksgiving Day.

The following thanksgiving proclamation has been issued by the president:

A PROCLAMATION.

In conformity with a custom, the annual observance of which is justly held in honor by the people, I, Chester A. Arthur, President of the United States, do hereby set aside Thursday, November the 30th, a day of public thanksgiving. The blessings demanding our gratitude are numerous and varied. For the peace and amity which subsist between this republic and all the nations of the world; for the freedom from internal discord and violence; for the increasing friendship between the different sections of the land; for the liberty, justice and constitutional government; for the devotion of the people to our free institutions and their cheerful obedience to mild laws; for the constantly increasing strength of the republic while extending its privileges to fellow-men who come to us; for the improved means of internal communication and the increased facilities of intercourse with other nations for the general prevailing health of the year; for the prosperity of all our industries, the liberal return for the mechanic's toil, affording a market for the abundant harvests of the husbandman; for the preservation of the national faith and credit; for wise and generous provision to effect the intellectual and moral education of our youth; for the influence upon the conscience of restraining and transforming religion, and for the joys of home; for these and for many other blessings we should give thanks.

Wherefore I do recommend that the day above designated be observed throughout the country as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, and that the people, ceasing from their daily labors and meeting in accordance with their several forms of worship, draw near to the throne of Almighty God, offering to Him praise and gratitude for the manifold goodness which He has vouchsafed to us and praying that His blessings and His mercies may continue. And I do further recommend that the day thus appointed be made a special occasion for deeds of kindness and charity to the suffering and the needy, so that all who dwell within the land may rejoice and be glad in this season of national thanksgiving.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the city of Washington this 25th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1882, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and seventh.

CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

By the President.
FREDERICK T. FRELINGHUYSEN,
Secretary of State.

The Reason Why.

"Where is the old steward?" inquired a traveler as he stepped aboard an outgoing steamer just previous to his departure.

"Oh, he was discharged some time ago?" replied the captain.

"Why, he seemed to be a first-class fellow," rejoined the first speaker; "Why was he kicked out?"

"Well, to tell you the truth, he got too big for his breeches, and we bounced him," emphatically ejaculated the captain.

This conversation occurred within hearing of a bright-eyed, intelligent little girl, the daughter of one of the tourists on that steamer. Subsequently another passenger arrived, and after bestowing a casual glance around, said:

"I don't see the old steward; what has become of him?"

"I think he was discharged," volunteered a bystander.

"Do you know what for?"

"No, sir."

"I do," piped a small voice from the cabin door.

Looking around the inquirer saw the smiling face of a little girl peeping out at him.

"Well, my dear," said he, "why was the steward discharged?"

"Oh, I don't like to tell," she bashfully replied.

"But I want to know," he persisted. "Come tell me, that's a good girl. What did they discharge him for?"

"Cause," she slowly answered, "cause his pants were too short!"

A Tale of Twenty Cities.

New York city, Philadelphia, Chicago, Brooklyn, Boston, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Pittsburg, San Francisco, Newark, Jersey City, Cleveland, Buffalo, Providence, Milwaukee, Louisville, Detroit, New Orleans, and Washington are the twenty leading manufacturing cities of the Union, and have nearly 70,000 manufactories, kept busy by the labor of 900,000 persons, at a cost of some $90,000,000 expended every year. If Democratic free-trade prevailed, those factories must close; that money would be expended otherwise than in giving employment to labor, and what would become of those 900,000 souls? Indirectly, but not less surely, millions of other laborers would be disastrously affected by the stoppage; and then, with ruin staring them in the face it might be too late to appeal to the Republican party for that protection which it had always thrown about the workingman. "Forewarned is forearmed." Let the men who depend upon the industries of the land for support be wise in time, and vote for the wide awake, seven o'clock' workingman's party.

A quaint old minister was once asked what he thought of his two sons, who were both preachers. "Well," he replied, "George has a better show in his shop window than John, but John has a large stock in his warehouse."

Absolute rest: Running a paper with both sides "patent."

The Kentucky Riot.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 2.—The McCreary and Nuckas' guards on their arrival from Cattlettsburg were welcomed by a formal address in which their conduct was approved. Governor Blackburn said he sent the troops to Cattlettsburg upon the application of Judge Brown, and while deeply sorry for the dead and wounded, he could not lay the blame on the troops, and if application is made in February he will send twelve regiments if necessary to uphold the laws.

ASHLAND, Ky., Nov. 2.—Major Allen, who commanded the troops guarding Neal and Craft, has made a detailed statement of the recent riot, in which he says that after declining to deliver the prisoners up to the mob he was informed by the leaders that he would be met at Ashland by at least two thousand or twenty-five hundred men, supported by a boat with four cannon. Upon arriving at Ashland they found a great crowd collected on the bank. A number of shots were fired at the boat and a ferry boat containing, it is supposed, about one hundred men, armed with muskets, rifles and shot guns, steamed from the land and approached the Granite State. The Granite State refused to stop, when the mob on the boat began firing and several of the troops were wounded. The command was then given to return the fire, which they did, and a quick and spirited conflict ensued for four or five minutes. The smoke stack and hurricane deck of the Granite State were well perforated by the bullets from the mob. Four or five soldiers were wounded, though none seriously. The fire of the troops was directed entirely at the ferry boat containing the mob. If persons standing on the bank were injured it was through carelessness in being so near to a lawless mob attacking state troops and not because the troops fired at them. In the engagement the ferry boat was soon silenced, and after the mob on her had ceased to fire not a single shot was fired by the troops. The commanding officer, while regretting that he was compelled to take such strong and deadly measures, feels that they were forced upon him and that the responsibility for the unfortunate results rests entirely upon the men who attempted to take the law into their own hands.

Frightful Accident.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., November 2.—Just before 6 o'clock this evening a loaded coal car broke loose on the incline plane at McIntyre's coal mine, twenty five miles from here, on the Northern Central railroad, and rushed down the plane at a fearful rate of speed. A number of men were on the car, three of whom were killed and two so badly wounded that they are not expected to live. The killed are James Dougherty, John Harris and Lewis Williams. The wounded are John Lundy, Sr., and John Lundy, Jr. Dougherty leaves a large family. Physicians have gone from here to the scene of the accident.

LATER.—At 11 o'clock to-night the injured men were still living, but it is not thought possible for them to survive. There were no men on the car except those named. The sheds at the foot of the plane were completely demolished. There is intense excitement at McIntyre's and in the surrounding country.

Burying the Victims.

ASHLAND, Ky., Nov. 3.—The buildings here are festooned with crape and all business is suspended. The funerals of three of the victims of Wednesday's violence took place at 10 o'clock. Six of the wounded are not expected to live. The citizens are very indignant against Governor Blackburn and Judge Brown. The latter has fled from the town. At the citizens' meeting last night steps were taken to raise a fund to pay the expenses of the killed and wounded. There is still great excitement.

Disgraceful Scene in Court.

ST. LOUIS, November 3.—The usual quiet and dignity of the United States court was very unexpectedly disturbed this afternoon. Ex-United States Senator J. B. Henderson and Henry A. Cunningham were present and discussing an order of the court in a case in which both were counsel, when Mr. Henderson remarked that Mr. Cunningham had not kept faith in some matter connected with the case. Mr. Cunningham replied in a heated manner that Mr. Henderson's assertion was false, whereupon the senator struck out from the shoulder, planted three blows upon Cunningham's face and head and knocked him violently against an iron pillar in the court room and thence to the floor. Friends then interfered and the belligerents were separated. Judge Treat was greatly shocked and excited, characterizing the affray as the most disgraceful thing that had occurred in the court during the twenty-four years he has been on the bench, and notwithstanding Mr. Henderson made an apology he fined him twenty dollars. Mr. Cunningham, in his contact with the iron pillar, had a finger broken and two others dislocated.

A Newspaper Man Shot.

EUREKA, Nov. 3.—A fatal shooting affray occurred here about 4 o'clock this afternoon on Main street between James E. Anderson, formerly of New Orleans, editor of the Eureka Evening Leader, a republican newspaper, and George T. Reek republican candidate for superintendent of public instruction. Anderson was shot through the bladder and lower bowels. Reek was not hit. Anderson is in a dying condition. Reek, after emptying his six shooter, ran up the street with Anderson pursuing and trying to fire a third time at him, but desisted on account of the crowded condition of the street or because the hammer of his pistol got out of gear. The cause of the trouble was a quarrel in regard to politics. The stories as to who fired the first shot are conflicting.

A Big Oil Fire.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., November 2.—Yesterday afternoon a fire caused an explosion among the tar and filled petroleum barrels at the north end of New York Central freight house, on Kent street. In an instant the street flowed with burning oil and a section of the freight house shipping department was in flames. A large amount of freight was there consigned to Western Merchants' Dispatch Company. Ten freight cars, some of them loaded, were destroyed. The flames extended to the receiving warehouse on the opposite side of the railroad track, where $200,000 worth of freight was stored. The windows and doors were damaged, but the merchandise was not damaged much, and only by water. The total loss is estimated at from $50,000 to $100,000. The goods in the receiving warehouse were insured.

A Suicide's Rescue.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A young woman named Mrs. Mary Schreyer attempted to commit suicide by jumping off a stone wall facing Hallett's Cove, Astoria, late Thursday night. A young man named Charles McKiernan threw himself into the river without removing any portion of his clothing and succeeded in bringing her to shore in a semi-conscious condition. She was taken to the Astoria police station, where Dr. W. R. Taylor succeeded in restoring her to consciousness. She said she lived in this city, and attempted to take her own life owing to grief occasioned by the recent death of her husband and only child. She is 24 years of age.

$20,000 Short.

PHILADELPHIA, November 2.—William Russel, paying teller of a Pennsylvania company for insurance on lives and granting annuities in this city, has absconded, and his accounts show discrepencies to the amount of $20,000. He had been connected with the company for thirteen years. He has a wife and children, but it is reported that for some time he has been criminally intimate with another woman here. He departed on October 16 for a vacation, and during his absence the defalcation was discovered. His leave of absence ended on Saturday last, but he failed to return, and his whereabouts cannot be discovered. He is 30 years of age.

A Sad Funeral.

NEW YORK, November 3.—The funeral of Mrs. Dr. Seguin and her three children whom she shot and killed, took place to-day from their late residence. From an early hour the streets were thronged with people whom it required a squad of police to keep in order. The funeral was strictly private, being only attended by members of the family and intimate friends. Dr. Seguin was present and looked utterly broken down. The services were very short and were conducted by Rev. Dr. Robert Collyer. The remains were conveyed in three hearses to the grand central depot and taken to Woodlawn cemetery for interment.

With Small Gloves.

CHICAGO, November 2.—An agreement was entered into this evening between John L. Sullivan and James Elliott to fight four rounds with small soft gloves in a twenty-four foot ring, Marquis of Queensbury rules, on December 9th, either in Chicago, Milwaukee or Pittsburgh. Sullivan agrees to give Elliott $500 and the gate receipts if he cannot knock Elliott out of time before the expiration of the four rounds.

Libel Suit Ended.

DETROIT, Mich., November 6.—An interesting and important libel suit terminated in the superior court to-day after two weeks trial. Two years ago Hugh S. Peoples was charged by the Post and Tribune with having guilty knowledge of the murder of a girl with whom letters and other evidence showed that he had been very intimate if not actually on criminal terms. The charge was made in a long article giving the details of the evidence then being accumulated by the police authorities. The girl's body, tied up in a sack, had been found floating in the Detroit river in March, 1879. The defense in justification claimed that the article was a privileged one, being written in the public interest for the purpose of ferreting out the authors of the murder. Peoples was subsequently arrested, tried and acquitted, the charge not being proved beyond a reasonable doubt. He then brought suit for libel, claiming fifty thousand dollars. The jury, this morning, after half an hour's absence, returned a verdict in favor of the defendant, holding first, that the article complained of was a privileged one; second, that the preponderence of testimony submitted by the defense sustained the charge that Peoples had guilty knowledge of the taking off of the unfortunate girl. The case has excited great interest in this community.

Secretary Quay Resigns.

HARRISBURG, November 5.—Word was received in this city on Saturday evening that Colonel Quay had tendered his resignation as secretary of the commonwealth. This was confirmed yesterday by the governor. In connection with the resignation Colonel Quay sent a telegram confirming the fact to B. F. Chandler, a clerk in the executive office.

COL. BUNN FOLLOWS SUIT.

Col. Bunn of Gov. Hoyt's staff, has also resigned. Below is his letter to governor Latta:

To James W. Latta, Adjutant-General.

SIR: I have the honor to tender my resignation as Assistant Commissary-General, and request its immediate acceptance. Yours,

Lieutenant-Colonel and Assistant Commissary-General.

Arrested.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Nov. 5.—Gustave Pipher, a Prussian, was arrested here to-day on information received from Renovo stating that he had shot Thomas Miller, an Englishman, at that place yesterday evening. The fire extends up Broad street to and including the Methodist church, and is threatening the First National bank building.

A Mysterious Affair.

NEW ORLEANS, La., November 5.—Charles McCarthy, colored, found his mother in her room on Rampart street at 5 o'clock this morning with a deep cut across her neck and unable to speak. He went to inform his sister Ellen on Marais street and found her dead with her throat cut. Mrs. McCarthy is not expected to recover, but has given information that she was cut by Peter Johnson. It is believed that he also cut Ellen's throat. The murderer escaped. Jealousy is supposed to have prompted the crime.

Mrs. Langtry's Debut.

NEW YORK, November 6.—Mrs. Langtry made her debut this evening at Wallack's theatre before one of the largest and most fashionable audiences ever assembled in a New York theatre. The bon ton of the city, a number of men of letters, artistes and celebrated personages were present. The English beauty made a very favorable impression. ### Observatory Burned.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4.—A large frame building erected beside the observatory at Professor Young's house for the observation of the coming transit of Venus accidentally took fire this evening and was burned to the ground. ### Makes an Assignment.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—It was rumored here to-day that William A. Leavitt, the proprietor of the Herd glass works, in this city, had failed for $700,000. All that is really known about the matter is that Leavitt has made an assignment to Nelson F. Evans for the benefit of his creditors. Both Mr. Leavitt and Mr. Evans say the liabilities are nothing like $700,000 and that the assets will entirely cover them.

Simon B. Rowley, who was the original owner of the Herd patent and the glass works and who failed in 1872 for $200,000, has filed a bill in equity alleging that a contract with Leavitt by which he was to become owner of half of the works had not been executed, and asking for an injunction to restrain Leavitt from proceeding under the assignment and asking the appointment of a receiver for the works as well as compelling Leavitt to execute his contract with him.

Trouble Feared.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The political campaign here has been conducted with unusual rancor and trouble is feared by many for to-morrow. United States Marshal A. M. Jones, who is also chairman of the republican state central committee, has appointed supervisors of election with instruction to arrest all who attempt to vote fraudulently. He claims that much fraudulent registration has taken place. Mayor Harrison charges that this action on Jones' part is a partisan movement in favor of the republicans. The chief of police has been instructed to swear in a large number of special constables for duty at the polls.

A New Suit.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 5.—To-night about 8 o'clock Henry Delois met Frank Dale in a new suit of clothes. They had been intimate companions. Delois remarked to Frank, "You have a new suit from top to toe," and at the same time brought his hand down on Dale's head, crushing his hat. Dale then knocked Delois down, whereupon the latter drew a pistol and fired three shots, two of which took effect, one inflicting a mortal wound, penetrating the bowels and bladder. Dale was taken to the hospital and Delois was arrested.

Indicted for Murder.

DANVILLE, Va., Nov. 6.—The grand jury of the Husting's court to-day indicted John Henry Johnston, mayor of this city, for the murder of John E. Hatcher, formerly chief of police. There had been some disagreement between the men as to the disposal made of certain fines and at a casual meeting on September 8 words and a slight scuffle ensued and Johnston shot Hatcher through the body. Hatcher died two days later from the effects of the wound. Johnston was also indicted for carrying concealed weapons.

CINCINNATI, November 3.—Andrew Mitchell, who was arrested at Mount Pleasant, a few miles from Glendale, on Monday last, on suspicion of being guilty of the murder of A. W. Ross, on October 8, was found dead in his cell in Glendale this morning. It is said that the proof against him was very strong.

Initiated.

Tuesday morning a loving mother on Linn street resolved to educate her daughter in regard to the solemn mysteries of election day. With that object she called her daughter to the window and the two ladies looked out upon the blushing morn. After a moment's silence the daughter said:

"The temperature is warm this morning, what means it, mother?" and the fair Angelina looked upon the Virgin earth, upon which the snow of winter had not yet fallen—her mother's luminous orbs resting upon the same object.

"Ah, my child, do you not know that this is election day?" answered the mother; "and the heat of summer has returned to favor the Republican party? This it always does. Even Nature is kind to those who deserve her blessing."

For a moment the young girl's countenance was illumined with an almost heavenly look of ecstacy and then a shudder suddenly convulsed her bosom, and she withdrew her head, surmounted with its coronal of bangs, within the window casement.

"My love, what is it?" exclaimed the mother as she encircled her daughter's waist with her fair arms.

As soon as the fair Angelina could recover herself she said with difficulty: "Ah, mother! hold me tighter; that terrible dark object in the sky—the rustle of those wings—the sound of that voice—what does it forebode?"

Then the mother's eyes scanned the heavens and she saw a score or more of those dark birds of prey soaring up from Valentine's woods and taking their flight in the direction of Coalville.

"There is no "caws" for alarm, my charming daughter," said the mother, beaming upon her daughter a look of intense affection; "those are crows. They are flapping their wings and uttering their musical "caws" in prospect of a feast on the morrow. There are three or four other candidates in addition to those of the Republican party. They will all be sacrificed and scores of dead bodies will be lying around loose fit food for the carrion crow. It is a feast that must always be held, horrible as it may seem. Let this be a lesson to you, my daughter, never to let your dear Augustus, when you are married, become a candidate for any other than the Republican party. Let us leave the window now, my darling, and descend to the breakfast table in quest of those buckwheat cakes and molasses whose savory odor even now pervades our very beings." And with a grateful caress the ladies descended to the dining room.

P. S., Since the above was written we have discovered that the old lady made a slight mistake.

—The modus operandi of making a legal holidays in this State is as follows: The Legislature makes the law on the subject. The Governor has the power, by authority of the law, to make a legal holiday by appointing a day for "fasting or thanksgiving," or for the general cessation of business on appropriate occasions, of the propriety of which occasions he is, of course, the judge. Acts of the Legislature make the days so appointed by the Governor legal holidays and also such days as are appointed by the President of the United States and receive the approval of the Governor. In our opinion, holidays cannot come too frequently, nor can the consumer of groceries go too often to the establishment of Sechler & Co. for the choice goods that are to be found there. It is advisible to keep the pantry abundantly supplied with fresh groceries, and to do this it is necessary to go almost daily to the store. Sechler & Co. dispose of an immense quantity of groceries and are thus enabled to keep up a constant fresh supply—nothing becomes stale on their hands. Their meat market is also an attractive feature to the establishment, enabling the customer to purchase all he needs under one roof.

—Gustave Pipher, a Prussian, was arrested at Williamsport on Sunday morning for the murder of Thomas Miller, an Englishman, at Renovo, on Saturday night. At the time of the tragedy Pipher and his wife were returning home with Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Saint. An altercation occurred between Pipher and Miller, in which the latter was shot and fatally wounded. We are astonished that such a crime should be committed, especially when two Saints constituted members of the party.

—Harry Teats & Co. are the only parties in this vicinity who deal in Jersey Sweet Potatoes. They are the best offered for sale.

—A telegram this morning conveys the information that Mrs. Langtry's American debut in Wallack's theatre, last evening, was remarkably successful. But that was a foregone conclusion in view of Oscar Wilde's deliverance a few days ago.

They Say—

That the amount of gas consumed by the residents of Linn street is out of all proportion to the number of people who make that street the place of their abode. This disproportion only recently commenced to grow so alarming and it is all in favor of the gas. The head of the household cannot solve the mystery, and the secret is in possession of certain young men about town who leave the houses by the light of the comet at 4 a. m., a fair form closing the door behind them.

That, although the chairs so long talked of in connection with the Y. M. C. A. hall, have not yet arrived, the "piano fund" concert will be given, and the music will be so excellent as to render the audience oblivious of the fact that they are not reclining upon upholstered divans.

That the glass works and nail works are still there, although so little is heard about them of late.

That Vennor has made a lamentable failure of all his prophetical ventures this year, It looks very much as if Democrats are following the example of the Canadian prophet.

That if the morality of Centre county is to be measured by the number of persons confined in the jail we are an exceedingly virtuous people.

That the Holly Tree Inn closed its doors because it failed to receive sufficient patronage to keep it going, and that the temperance of Bellefonte is nearly all talk and very little practice, anyway.

That the young man employed in the store on Allegheny street who promised to take his girl out sleighing a dozen times this winter and has no money to pay the livery bills, is beginning to feel a sense of relief in the prospect that he can plead scarcity of snow for an excuse.

That the number of young gentlemen who now call the Exchange on the telephone has increased two fold during the past few days.

That a voter in this place took time to go fishing on Monday, notwithstanding everybody was supposed to be too much excited about politics for piscatorial sport.

—Now "the cruel war is over" our male friends have time to call on Harry Green for a first-class cigar.

Thanksgiving Day.

A few days ago Gov. Hoyt issued the following proclamation authorizing, Thursday, November 30, to be observed as a day of Thanksgiving by the people of the state:

"In common with the inhabitants, of all the land, the people have just cause for thankfulness to Almighty God for the manifold material, intellectual and spiritual fruits and increase of the year: Now, therefore, I Henry Hoyt, Governor of Pennsylvania, do ordain and appoint Thursday the thirtieth day of November, A. D. '82 as recommended by the president of the United States, a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to the end that the citizens of the commonwealth, of every race, creed and condition, together with the wayfarer and sojourner therein, may gather at the altar and the hearth to give thanks to God; to implore a continuance of his favor; to renew and strengthen, in kindness of heart and act, social and domestic ties, and to set apart out of the abundance of the year, one day as a sign and covenant of their faith and hope and love."

—This is the season for buckwheat cakes and Harry Teats & Co. have a superior article of buckwheat meal.

—The Lyceum, organized about two months ago by the young men of this place, will meet this (Wednesday) evening at half past eight o'clock in the audience hall of the Y. M. C. A. It will be remembered that at the time of the first meeting of this organization it was determined not to meet again until after the election. That event is now consummated, and those young men endowed with a taste for literary improvement and so fortunate as to have leisure at their command to indulge that taste may meet at the time and place above designated.

—The best advice we can give our readers is to purchase groceries of Sechler & Co.

—On Wednesday, the 1st instant, what might have been a disastrous fire occurred at Lemont. Mr. John E. Murray, of that place, had taken down the pipe attached to his kitchen stove for the purpose of cleaning it. In putting the pipe up again he evidently failed to connect the joints properly. At an early hour on Wednesday morning he built a fire in the stove and the escaping sparks and flame from the disconnected pipe ignited the wall near by. Before the fire was extinguished it damaged the interior of the house quite seriously.

—A cordial reception is given every day to customers who call on Sechler & Co. for fine groceries.

An Absent-Minded Baggage Master.

From the Cambria Freeman: A pretty good joke is told at the expense of a baggage master on the western division, Pennsylvania railroad, and the best of it is that it is true in all essential particulars. It seems that the gentleman in question undertook to see that a little boy who had been placed in his charge at Altoona should be safely delivered to his mother, who was to meet him in Pittsburg on the arrival of the train in that city, and in pursuance of his contract the baggage master took the lad with him to the passenger depot in Altoona, where he gave him his lunch basket and told him to go into the ticket office and sit there until he called for him. The lad did as instructed, but the baggage master forgot his part of the contract, and tradition has it that he never thought of the boy until he began to feel hungry, being then well on his way to Pittsburg, when the idea struck him that the lad and the lunch had both been left behind. The mother of the boy, who had come about fifteen miles for the purpose, was promptly on hand to meet her son when the train arrived in Pittsburg, and the only excuse the b. m. had to offer was that he hadn't promised to bring the boy that day, but some other day. Meantime the youth, finding that he had been left with the lunch and in the lurch, began to cry, which attracted the attention of some humane person, who took or sent him back to the residence of the absent-minded and absent-bodied baggage master, from whence he was taken to his destination the next trip.

—An affecting instance of the rare devotion of a wife to her husband occurred at Gainesville, Ga., a few days ago. The man was in jail for robbery, his wife making frequent visits to him and always exhibiting unwillingness to depart. One evening she lingered so long that the turnkey was compelled to lead her out by force. Suddenly her visits ceased and her husband grew more melancholy, speaking but seldom. Some slight circumstance awoke suspicion and it was discovered that the wife had voluntarily taken her husband's place in the jail and the robber was now at liberty. A greater exhibition of devotion is not often witnessed and almost equals the devotion of the people of Centre county for the grocery store of Sechler & Co. We are quite sure that every man, woman and child in the county is willing to travel miles for the purpose of purchasing groceries at this favorite store, and when they reach it they are always pleased with the superior excellence of everything they buy. Sechler's groceries have become a synonym of all that is worth prizing in that line of trade.

Possibly it was the wart on your nose that influenced her in her decision, or it might have been your politics. ## THE LATEST NEWS.

Bursting Bombs.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—Casper Younger, an elderly man, will have a hearing this afternoon upon a charge of attempting to kill his daughter, Mrs. Goekel, her husband, August Goekel, the two children of the Goekels, and Mrs. Younger, wife of the prisoner. August Goekel is a tailor, and recently gave home and shelter to his mother-in-law, who left Younger in Baltimore, on account of cruelty to her. Shortly after 10 o'clock Friday night Goekle was startled by a crash of the windows and still another crash of the swinging coal oil lamp hanging near his head. Bewildered and in darkness, he made his way to the door. Here he was met by his wife and children who, hearing the noise, had run upstairs from the lower floor. While thus grouped at the head of the landing a loud report was heard almost at their feet, but beyond the shock caused by the report no injury resulted to them. Upon examination a piece of lead pipe about six inches long, and covered with oil cloth, was found on the floor, which had been corked at one end, and the other end contained a fuse. This was the missile which had been hurled through the window. As the fuse burned short the pipe was discharged, fortunately in a direction at right angles with the family standing in the doorway, and doing them no harm. On the east wall of the room were found marks of the deadly force of the contents of the missile, and on the floor lay leaden bullets, pieces of iron and fragments of block glass with which it had been charged. Some lead pipe, a number of bullets similar to those found in the room, a piece of fuse a yard long, a lot a block glass and a revolver were found in the stable, where Younger usually slept.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—Casper Younger, who was arrested for attempting to destroy his family with a bomb which he threw in the window of their house in Nectarine street, where his son-in-law was at work, was given a hearing to-day and held in $3,000 bail for trial.

Domestic Trouble.

CHICAGO, October 20.—An arrest that undoubtedly will cause something of a sensation in the city where the arrested parties are best known was made by a constable from Justice Prindiville's court Saturday night. Theodore S. Weber, a fine looking man of between 30 and 36 years of age, and Miss Annie Hunter, both of Cincinnati, were charged with unlawfully living together, Weber being a married man. The arrest was made at the instance of Benjamin Hatch, a Cincinnati detective, who has been here watching the suspected parties for some time. It is alleged that Miss Hunter is a daughter of a wealthy widow living just outside of Cincinnati, and that she had been at a convent for a year or so previous to meeting Mr. Weber, for whom she formed a very strong attachment. They came to Chicago, it is claimed, and lived at a fashionable house on Wabash avenue, where they were apprehended by Detective Hatch, who had been employed in the case by the mother of Miss Hunter. After their arrest they were driven out to the residence of Justice Brayton, on Vincennes avenue, where Hamilton P. Verney, a guest at the Leland hotel, signed two bonds in the sum of $500 each for their appearance before Justice Brown at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The young lady was very elegantly attired and took her arrest very quietly, but Mr. Weber seemed to realize his position and looked very much concerned. After the signing of the bonds the entire party reentered their carriage and drove away. Weber is a son of one of the wealthiest residents of New Orleans.

Bold Operation of Burglars.

WEST BROOKFIELD, Mass., October 28.—Clark's drug store, in Blair's block, was broken into last night by three men, the safe blown open and $150 taken. While at their work the robbers were surprised by the clerk, John McEvoy, but got outside the door. In the pursuit pistols were used, and McEvoy received a slight wound in the abdomen. Two of the burglars took an early eastbound train, and when it reached Charlton they compelled the train hands by a display of revolvers to stop the train, and thus escaped. The third man ran in a westerly direction and has been traced to Ware. The whole country is up in arms looking for them.

Fonlly Dealt With.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 31.—Last night Michael Beecher Ronan, of New York, was found unconscious near the Pennsylvania railroad track here with his skull fractured. It was supposed he had fallen from a train, but it is now ascertained that he met with foul play, and George Plum says he asked Ronan for some tobacco, and upon being refused shoved deceased, who fell to the ground and fractured his skull.

A Mother's Crime.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., October 31.—At Ivy depot, Albermarle county, last night, a colored woman was caught in the act of drowning her two-year-old son. With a cloth tied over his face and a rope around his neck she was hauling him up and down the river. She has been lodged in jail. It is thought the child will die.

A Mother's Deadly Deed

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Sequin, aged 36, wife of Dr. Edward C. Sequin, a noted specialist on diseases of the brain, shot and killed her three young children, aged 6, 5 and 4 years, respectively, this afternoon, and then killed herself at No. 41 West Twentieth street. There is no other cause known for the terrible tragedy than insanity in the mother. Mrs. Sequin took the children to an empty spare room at the top of the five-story house in the absence of her husband, when the servants were engaged in the basement, and locked herself in with them. The servants believed that they had gone out for a walk. What happened in the room will never be known, but when Dr. Amidon, Mrs. Sequin's brother, called at 5 o'clock and with his suspicions aroused by the long absence of the family made a search of the house, mother and children were found dead, all shot through the head. The children's hands were tied behind their backs with whip cord. They were blindfolded with handkerchiefs, and from all appearances they must have been shot while playing blind-man's-buff with their destroyer. They had been dead for at least an hour and a half and were quite cold. Three pistols were found in the room, all of large calibre and all had been used.

It is in evidence that Mrs. Sequin had been despondent from physical causes for some time, but she had shown no symptoms of insanity. Her domestic life was very happy and there was no family trouble. Dr. Sequin returned home about 7 o'clock and upon hearing the news was entirely prostrated. He is in a state of mental distress and under the care of a physician. The family moved in the first society.

Dickson Again.

WASHINGTON, October 31.—Quite a sensation was created in the criminal court to-day by the foreman of the grand jury placing in Justice Wylie's hands a letter received by him (the foreman), signed by William Dickson. The latter calls the attention of the grand jury to the fact that writer served on the jury in the star route trials; that while so acting as juror he was approached by Henry A. Bowen, an agent of the department of justice, and offered $25,000 to influence the verdict. The letter closes with a request that the charge be investigated by the grand jury, and the writer asks to be summoned so that he can present the facts, supported by the corroborating proofs. Judge Wylie, after reading the letter, declared it to be a highly improper communication and directed the jury to pay no attention to it, adding that he would issue a rule to have the writer brought before him to-morrow morning and show cause why he should not be punished for contempt. The grand jury then retired and the regular business of court proceeded.

The rule was served upon Mr. Dickson by Deputy Marshall Williams during the afternoon.

Destructive Storm.

DAVENPORT, Ia., October 31.—Yesterday afternoon this region was visited by a destructive storm. About 4 o'clock a storm of hail began and continued some ten minutes, doing great damage to skylights. It was not accompanied by any wind whatever. Some of the hailstones were of phenomenal size, of irregular shape and eight inches in circumference by half an inch in thickness. From this size they ran down to the size of hazel nuts. East of Davenport the storm took the form of rain and wind unattended by hail. Beginning four miles east of the city the storm followed a line five miles long by one-third of a mile in width, and did damage amounting to over $40,000. Three houses were blown down, together with a number of barns. Mrs. George Ferro was buried in the debris of her house and killed. Two other occupants of the house were seriously injured by the falling timbers. Six or eight other persons were slightly injured, but the fatal cases will not reach more than three.

The Mistake of McGillice.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—Owen McGillice, a resident of Pittsburgh, and one of the sub-contractors for the construction of the Pittsburgh, McKeysport and Youghiogheny railroad, was arraigned at the Central station on the charge of forgery and embezzlement. He was in the employ of Harris Bros. & Co., contractors, and a week ago was given two checks amounting to $15,556.59 to pay the workmen.

LATER.—Owen McGillice, of Pittsburgh, who was arrested at the Girard house last night on the charge of embezzlement of $15,600 from a Pittsburg firm, was given a hearing at the central station this afternoon and held in $16,000 bail.

A Theatre Burned.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Abbey's Park theatre was this evening totally destroyed by fire. None of the actors were in the building, as there was no rehearsal during the afternoon.

LATER.—The loss is estimated at $250,000. Mrs. Langtry had just finished packing her wardrobe in which she was to appear in the evening and was on the point of sending it to the theatre when the fire broke out. Mr. Abbey's loss is $100,000. He immediately made arrangements to open next Monday night at the Grand Opera House, with Mrs. Langtry, in "An Unequal Match."

The Yellow Fever.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 31.—Fifteen new cases of yellow fever and four deaths are reported to-day.

Washington Society.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—There is every indication that the coming season will be socially a very brilliant one. The Garfield memorial fair, which will last for a week, immediately preceding the opening of the session of congress, is expected to attract large numbers of visitors to the city, and judging from what is now known of the intended exhibits, the fair will repay a thorough inspection. Many choice and rare articles will also be on sale. After the exhibition is over the congressional season opens, and, as it is the last session of a congress and the short session, every evening will be utilized for social festivities. Within a year a number of wealthy and distinguished persons have built fine residences, prepared for elaborate entertainments, and they will no doubt be thrown open to the fashionable world when the winter's visitors arrive. It is anticipated that President Arthur will take an active part in fashionable pleasures this winter. Society mourns his refusal to accept and install any of the numerous ladies whom it has at various times named as the mistress of the White House, but still hopes that there may yet be in store as a crowning sensation a wedding at the White House. But whether this is to be or not, much is expected of President Arthur in the way of receptions and entertainments. His social inclinations were repressed last winter, and a gloom cast upon society in general, by the death of Garfield, but the full time of mourning for this tragic event is said to have elapsed.

To Colonize Palestine.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 31.—There has been incorporated here the Palestine colonization and Christian missionary association, formed for the purpose of colonizing Palestine with industrious and energetic Christians, and by their prudence, labor and perseverance restoring it to its former grandeur, so that it will not only be the centre of the world geographically, but also in art, science and wealth. The members of the association claim that under proper management the soil can be restored to a very high state of cultivation, mineral resources developed and mechanical industries established, thereby producing vast commercial intercourse with other nations. It is the purpose of the association to run a line of packets between Boston and Palestine, and the management is now negotiating for the purchase of suitable vessels.

Attacked by a Mob.

CINCINNATI, November 1.—A Lexington, Kentucky, special says: The troops guarding Neal and Craft while on their way to the steamer Granite State were attacked by a mob. The soldiers fired and several were killed and wounded of the attacking party. The prisoners and troops got safely on board, when the mob seized a train and headed off the boat at Ashland, Ky., where another attack was made. The troops returned the fire, and again a number of the mob were killed and wounded. So far as known only three of the soldiers were wounded and they but slightly. Private dispatches received here place the number of killed at five and wounded at thirty. The steamer Granite State has passed Portsmouth, and unless the fog prevents will reach Maysville to-night, where the prisoners will be transferred to the railroad to be taken to Lexington.

Coal Trains in Collision.

SCRANTON, Nov. 1.—This morning at Diamond Crossing on the Lehigh and Susquehanna railroad the coal track of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western company, a coal train of the latter road, coming from the Diamond mines, ran through a Delaware and Hudson coal train going north on the former road. Sixteen cars of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, and nine of the Delaware and Hudson, were thrown from the track, including the engine of the former. The train hands were injured. John Glynn, a watchman, was killed by the cars falling on his watch-house.

A Horrible Death.

COHOES, N. Y., October 30.—Joseph Rivitt, aged 45 years, fell into the canal to-day and was carried over a "weir" twenty-five feet high, dropped into a raceway running at a rapid rate and whirled along to a dam fifty feet high over which he was carried. The waters then carried him through a wild gorge into the Mohawk river. His efforts for life were witnessed by fifteen hundred people. His body was recovered. Rivitt leaves a wife and five children.

Nothing to Live For.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Charles Krammer, a German cutter, fifty years old, shot himself, at No. 222 Sixth street, early this morning. Krammer was employed as cutter in a Broadway store. His motive for ending his life is supposed to have been despondency, brought on by a lack of work. He was somewhat given to drinking, and leaves a wife and several children.

Fiftieth Anniversary.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The fiftieth anniversary of the consecration of the venerable president, Bishop Smith, of Kentucky, was celebrated this morning in St. Paul's chapel. Rev. Dr. Dix read a formal address of congratulation to Bishop Smith, and presented him with a massive gold chalice and pen.

The Terrible Typhoon.

MADRID, November 1.—An official dispatch from Manila states that 100 sailors were drowned during the recent typhoon.

"What I want to know is who struck the first blow," said an Austin Justice to Jim Webster, who was the principal witness in an assault and battery case. "Uncle Ike, dah, he hit de fust lick," replied Jim. "Are you positive that Uncle Ike struck the first blow?" "Ob course I is. Didn't I see him reach out and hit de fust lick, but how many licks he hit befo' dat fust one, or how many licks de udder nigah hit him fust am more dan I'se willin' to swar ter."

Englishmen formerly supposed that American running horses were very inferior to theirs; but during the last few years Parole, Wallenstein, and other fast ones that were sent from this country to England, have won hundreds of thousands of dollars, for such Americans as the Messrs. The Englishmen have investigated the reasons for the great success of the American horses, and find that they are kept in such fine condition by the constant use of M. B. Roberts' Horse Powders.

Precious Hope—Peruna.

One morning while he (her husband) was holding her up in order that she could breathe more easily, after having struggled with a bad spell of coughing, he made the remark that he did not believe that she would ever get well, when she in her weakness, said: "Yes, I will, if you will bring Dr. Hartman." The doctor was brought. He prescribed a teaspoonful of Peruna every hour. She began to improve from the first dose she took. She told me to-day that she has never felt better in her life than she does now, and that she cannot say too much for Peruna.
A. J. MILLER.

Her husband writes: "South Chicago, Ill., Dec. 19, 1881: I have a living witness of the virtue of Peruna in my wife, who was saved from death by it. I certify that every word on page 30 in Dr. Hartman's book on the "Ills of Life" is true in every particular. T. S. EBERLINE.

"A WONDERFUL THING IS A SEED," Says some song writer, and then he adds:

"You can sow to-day; to-morrow will bring
The blossom that proves what sort of thing

All of which is true. And Hunt's Remedy is a wonderful thing, also. It, also, is tested by experience. You give it to one who is severely afflicted with dropsy, or some liver or kidney disease, and "to-morrow," or a little while, reveals "what sort of thing" it is; for it proves itself to be "the friend in need," the cure for which you have been seeking. This is the experience of thousands. We do not fear, but invite the most rigid testing of Hunt's Remedy in kidney and liver diseases.

Bellefonte as Viewed by a Stranger.

Rev. Dr. P. S. Davies, of Philadelphia, was in Bellefonte on the occasion of the meeting of the Reformed church Synod in this place. He evidently "fell in love" with our town. At least, he was influenced in an unusual degree by the subtle inspiration which effervesces from our atmosphere for he sat down and penned the following charming letter to The Messenger, a journal of the Reformed church published in Philadelphia, of which he is editor. Our Presbyterian friends will remember him as the gentleman who preached for them at the morning service of Sunday, October 15. Dr. Davies' letter is as follows.

BELLEFONTE, Oct. 16th, 1882.

The clouds that hung so drearily over this region of country for some days past have risen and drifted seaward. The sight was beautiful this morning when the sun gilded them and sent them up from the mountain tops, like empurpled incense from some great altar to Jehovah. And this was quickly followed by the lifting of the veil of amethist that dimmed the autumnal tints of the forests—prettier around here, it seems to us now, than we have ever seen them before. The Muncy range of mountains and all the Nittany valley seems to be one blaze of glory. Everything is as gay as a gypsy's dress, and yet there is nothing grotesque in it all, for a Divine hand has "laid the Tyrian dyes." We have often thought that pictures of American autumn scenery were too highly colored, but exaggeration is almost impossible. A painter might as well stand in fear of excessive brilliancy when portraying the red and orange splendors of our evening skies. The defects of artists are not always in mere richness of tone.

The streams in this section of country are exceptionally fine. They come babbling down the gorges or rippling through the valleys, "now brown with shade, now sparkling in the sun," and have an irresistible charm for those who take any kind of pleasure in such things.

The town of Bellefonte, which was laid out in 1795, received its name at the suggestion of Talleyrand to Mrs. Harris, from a large crystal spring that bubbles up in one of the ravines and affords a plenteous supply of delicious water. The place is a kind of Rome, in that it is beautifully situated on seven hills. It has promising schools and manufactures, but is conspicuous for its good church buildings and its large number of elegant residences. We have never seen a town of the size that excelled it in this regard. Ex-Governor Curtin and Gen. Jas. A. Beaver, candidate for the executive chair of the State, reside here, and these gentlemen, with many others whose names we cannot mention, have thrown open their homes to the members of the Synod now in session and are extending easy, graceful hospitality to their guests.

Many of our ministers and elders visited the house of the former, where among other objects of art, may be seen the splendid pictures of the late Czar, Alexander II, and his premier, the world renowned Gortschakoff. These portraits were painted by Broockman, the most distinguished artist of Russia. They were on public exhibition in Philadelphia during the Centennial year, and were afterwards given to Gov. Curtin by imperial command as a mark of the high esteem in which he was held while United States Minister at the Court of St. Petersburg. Both pictures are marvelously fine in themselves and their value is enhanced to the owner by high and endearing associations. The brethren, will not soon forgot the courtesy with which these works were shown, or the valuable information given in regard to the illustrious man whose tragical end has excited so much interest everywhere.

In the year 1836 Rev. Ephraim Kieffer organized the first Reformed Congregation at Bellefonte, and in 1844, during the pastorate of Rev. W. R. Yearick the first house of worship was built. This was a Union Church, and was occupied by Reformed and Lutheran congregations until 1858 when the Lutherans withdrew, the Reformed people having bought their interest in the property. In the spring of 1880 the old building was seriously damaged by fire, and the present new structure was commenced. The building is a credit to the pastor and all concerned in its erection. It is quite a gem of architectural beauty, and we wish others would copy its style and plan. We were astonished to hear that its entire cost will not exceed $15,000—much less than is often spent upon some "hippogriff of art,"—"half temple, and half mart." It will be consecrated on the 27th of this month, almost, and we hope entirely free from debt. The communicant members number about one hundred.

Of the proceedings of the Synod the State Clerk will tell our readers. We can only say that the meeting was a pleasant and profitable one.

Houtzdale Happenings.

A new depot building is in process of erection at Houtzdale, Mr. Hughes, formerly of this place, having the contract for the work, and Mr. John Campbell, also recently a resident of our town, superintending the various details. It will be a very fine structure and creditable to the "Bellefonte genius" which is employed upon it.

Houtzdale will have the advantage of Bellefonte in its opera house accommodations, a new building for operatic and theatrical purposes being contemplated. It will be large and elegant and when finished Houtzdale will doubtless be a Mecca for the best talent in the country. It will be located on Good street.

Among the other building enterprises are a bank building (which has just been completed and is ready for occupancy), and a large structure, which we believe is intended for a ten pin alley.

Mr. C. A. Lindsay, of Houtzdale, has increased the dimensions of his business by starting a branch jewelry store at Osceola, which will be under the control of his brother, Mr. E. S. Lindsay.

Thrift and prosperity and an unlimited quantity of local news are visible on every hand. The streets are not any too clean, drunkenness prevails to an alarming extent, but evident improvement in the morals of the people is perceptible.

Houtzville, which is located "over the hill" from Houtzdale, has recently been dubbed Brisbin in honor of a distinguished gentleman who has done much to benefit it.

The Telephone Exchange at Houtzdale does an extensive business. It is connected with nearly all the neighboring places and the people are thus put in immediate communication with the outside world and are "even with the times" in every respect.

Several citizens of Houtzdale "took in" the Bi-Centennial and if it had not been for the crowd of people they might have seen what was happening.

Mistakes of the "Chief Men."

Once upon a time a company of individuals met together in one place, founded a town and organized a borough government. The spot on which they fixed for a habitation was soon laid out in wide and beautiful thoroughfares, eliciting the admiration of all who beheld them. On either side of the principal streets were pretty houses and fine business blocks. But it so happened that the chief men of that town cast their eyes toward the outskirts where, behold, there were several streets which had no walks for the benefit of those who passed to and fro over them. Lo, a wail arose from those people day and night because of the neglect of their streets! The chief men heard the wail and directed that walks should be laid of uniform width and excellence. But it so happened that all of the citizens traversed certain streets located in the center of the town and that the walks which were laid the year before Adam was born in course of time wore out. A cry arose from those people in regard to this matter and all with one accord agreed that the aforesaid walks should be repaired. But the chief men turned a deaf ear to their entreaties and would hear none of their complaints. So the people of high and low degree had to tumble along over the inequalities in the walks as best they could. How many people broke their necks in trying to jump from rock to rock in front of the Centre County bank and other places almost as bad will perhaps never be revealed; but it is to be hoped that the chief men of the town, when they meet again, will issue their edicts as they did in regard to the streets on the outskirts, commanding that the owners of property build new walks immediately or the chief men will proceed to do so and collect the cost from the aforesaid property holders.

—Gen. E. W. Sturdevant, a prominent and wealthy citizen of Wilkesbarre, died at his home quite suddenly on Monday, October 30. His second wife was a daughter of Hon. Charles Huston, of this place, who died in 1849. Gen. Sturdevant was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1837, and for many years was an active, influential and prominent citizen in the political and business world. He leaves two sons and two daughters. The sons are members of the legal profession, one of whom is a resident of Wilkesbarre, and the other resides in Virginia.

Mr. Will, a flagman on the B. E. V. railroad, had his left foot run over and crushed by the cars, when the freight west from Lock Haven was pulling out of that place on Tuesday morning of last week.

The Presbyterian Sunday School Building.

A meeting of the Presbyterian congregation was held in the church last Monday evening for the purpose of receiving the report of the committee appointed at a previous meeting to have a suitable plan prepared for the erection of a Sunday school and prayer meeting building on the lot adjoining the church, at which ex-Governor Curtin presided and Rev. J. Hughes acted as Secretary.

A committee report (accompanied by several sketches, made by Mr. E. Culver, an architect from Williamsport), was presented by Mr. E. C. Humes, chairman of the committee, recommending the immediate erection of the house, with such modifications as were considered necessary.

The report was accepted and the recommendations of the committee adopted, and the board of trustees authorized to have specifications prepared, to be followed by a letting of the work in the early future.

The prevailing opinion of those present was, so far as expressed, in favor of using the "Snow Shoe brown stone" in the erection of the walls.

—Several boys in this vicinity evidently labored under the false impression that Monday evening of last week was the saintly festival of All-Hallowe'en, for they proceeded to play the pranks usually reserved for that occasion, among which was the destruction of some of the property belonging to Mr. Theodore Deschner, gunsmith, and also damaging the outside ornamentation of Mr. William Mills' barber shop. If the youngrascals who perpetrated the mischief are known they should be arrested. By the way, what's the idea of indulging in such pranks on All-Hallowe'en, anyway? It is the "eve" preceeding the festival dedicated to all the saints, and such actions are the very last we would suppose them guilty of. Boys, if you want to imitate the actions of the good people who earned themselves the title of saints, don't destroy property belonging to other people.

—This is what Vennor says about it: "November, half fine, half stormy; brief spell of Indian summer. December, snowy, stormy and wet and cold, according to locality; very stormy on Atlantic (similar to 1881). Unusual rain fall in New York and middle states, seaboard section, November and December. One very cold part in December (fore part), likely to be generally felt. The winter of 1882-1883 will be the reverse of quiet. February will be the finest month, after the first ten days. March will have its blows and bluster the wrong end.

—A few days ago we recorded the fact that a gentleman residing at Boiling Springs found a whortleberry vine ten feet in length while making explorations in the vicinity of Tow Hill, and that he now sports a cane made from the aforesaid vine. This morning the gentleman—Mr. George T. Hunter—was in town and showed us the cane. It is a thick, strong stick, yellow in color and quite ornamental, and is the last piece of wood which a person would suppose ever formed a part of a whortleberry vine. His remarkable "find" occurred about two months ago at which time he also found others of even greater length. The berries which grew on them were of the ordinary black sort. He ate the berries and says they tasted excellent.

Huston township enjoyed the eclat of a Republican demonstration on Monday evening of last week. Mr. J. S. Stewart was elected president and Shadrack Williams secretary. Addresses were made by Messrs. Ray and Gray, and Mr. J. C. Henderson was called on making an excellent speech. The tariff was the chief subject discussed. The meeting was regarded as a great success.

—Arrangements are in progress for the district convention of the Y. M. C. A. at Centre Hall, beginning on Friday, the 10th instant.

Cuticura
THE NEW BLOOD PURIFIER
Resolvent

I will now state that I made a miraculous cure of one of the worst cases of skin disease known. The patient is a man forty years old; had suffered fifteen years. His eyes, scalp and nearly his whole body presented a frightful appearance. Had had the attention of twelve different physicians, who prescribed the best remedies known to the profession, such as iodide potassium, arsenic, corrosive sublimate, sarsaparilla, etc. Had paid $500 for medical treatment with but little relief. I prevailed upon him to use Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. He did so and was completely cured. The skin on his head, face, and many other parts of his body, which presented a most loathsome appearance, is now as soft and smooth as an infant's, with no scar or trace of the disease left behind. He has now been cured twelve months.
Reported by
F. H. BROWN, Esq., Barnwell, S. C.

SCROFULA SORE.

Rev. Dr. ——, in detailing his experience with the Cuticura Remedies, said that through Divine Providence one of his parishioners was cured of a scrofulous sore, which was slowly draining away his life, by the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally. The poison that had fed the disease was completely driven out.

ECZEMA.

Sixteen months since an eruption broke out on my legs and both feet, which turned out to be Eczema, and caused me great pain and annoyance. I tried various remedies with no good results, until I used the Cuticura Resolvent internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, which entirely cured me so that my skin is as smooth and natural as ever.
LEN. M. FRAILEY, 64 South St., Baltimore.

CUTICURA.

The Cuticura treatment for the cure of Skin, Scalp and Blood Diseases, consists in the internal use of Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, and the external use of Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, the Great Skin Cures.

How Lost, How Restored!

Just published, a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical cure of SPERMATORRHŒA or Seminal weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, IMPOTENCY, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by Self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

Bellefonte Republican.

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor.

Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

—Hurrah for——

—The days are decreasing in length rapidly.

—The election in Bellefonte was unusually quiet.

—A new roof is being put on the Academy building.

—The Logan Hose Company met on Tuesday evening.

—Turkeys are being fattened for Thanksgiving dinners.

—Eggs are scarce and high and can not be bought at any price.

—Sausage is evidently held in high esteem as an article of diet.

—Republicans, as a rule, are not weeping over it to any extent.

—The work of enlarging the gutters along Linn street is not yet completed.

—There are three thousand polling places in the State of Pennsylvania.

—Apples are not abundant, but some very beautiful ones are offered for sale.

—Harry Greeen returned from Philadelphia on Wednesday evening of last week.

—On Saturday night Prof. Apple told the people of Lock Haven about the comet.

—There was an election held on Tuesday. At least there are signs of such an occurrence.

—Bellefonte politicians have not made entensive use of brass bands during the present campaign.

—There is a letter for Wm. T. Speer, Bellefonte, Pa., in the Clearfield post office. It is held for postage.

—The Democrats made quite a racket over the favorable news received by them about 1 o'clock Wednesday morning.

—It wasn't much of a victory, anyhow. If the Republicans had polled 60,000 more votes we'd have whipped Pattison out of his boots. See?

—Pifer, the man who killed Thomas Miller at Renovo and was afterward arrested at Williamsport, has been taken to Renovo and placed in jail.

—Are our merchants purchasing their holiday goods? If so, they should inform people of the fact through the columns of a newspaper.

—The "tormentor" registered 26° on Friday morning, which is 4° lower than on any previous occasion this fall. It is sufficient to indicate that Old Winter is approaching.

—For the benefit of those Democrats who seem concerned about the condition of Gen. Beaver we would say that he has lost no flesh since the returns came in and is able to take his regular rations.

—There are encouraging evidences to lead us to the conclusion that a new pavement will soon be laid in front of the Centre County Bank, stone having been hauled for that purpose and men engaged in the initiatory operations.

—Prof. Osborn, of State College will lecture in this place on the evening of Friday, December 1, for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. His subject will be "Astronomy" and the various phenomena of the heavens will be illustrated by the oxy-calcium light.

—A Pittsburg drummer stepped in to a ditch before the Centre county bank last week and sprained his neck.. The girl on the opposite sidewalk, who was the cause of his trouble, said "Ah!" then snickered and skipped on. Even a drummer will run up a stump sometimes.

—The last sad ceremonies took place over the body of Mrs. Marcella C. Adams at the residence of her husband, J. H. Adams, on Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Affecting remarks eulogistic of the many virtues of deceased were made by Rev. Mr Edwards. The attendance was was remarkably large, a long line of people in carriages and on foot following the body to its last resting place in the beautiful city of the dead on Howard street.

—The Lock Haven and Clearfield base ball clubs are just now waging a war of words over the result of an unfortunate game played in Clearfield some time ago, in which the last mentioned club are said to have won the game—not by superior playing, but with money. They threaten to play another game in Bellefonte as neutral ground. Mayor Powers will be under the necessity of doubling the police force, if the barbarians come in this direction.

The Elections In Centre County.

The election on Tuesday was remarkably quiet. A drizzling rain, combined with a slight fall of snow, began about 11 o'clock a. m., and continued a large part of the day. Most strennous efforts were made to get out the full vote and it was successfully accomplished. Beaver's majority in the borough is 146. The returns received from the different voting precincts throughout the county show a large gain for Beaver over the vote for Bailey in 1881. Pattison's plurality in the county will reach only 500 or 600. Twenty polling places heard from up to 11 p. m. showed a gain of 446 for Beaver, fully demonstrating that he is popular in Centre county.

Centre county, it must be admitted, has done nobly. A Republican gain of over 400 is a result that causes the Democratic leaders to roll their eyes in amazement, and shows what can be accomplished by a vigorous assault on the enemy's works. This grand result in the county is largely due to the masterly efforts of Chairman Hastings and his able lieutenants. The party was never better organized for effective work than during this campaign as is evidenced by the wholesale cutting down of the Democratic majorities. The good work thus begun must be pushed on. Let us continue to strengthen our lines and all work together for the accomplishment of one purpose—the blotting out of Democratic supremacy in Centre county.

—The contest between Rhoads and Hunter for assembly is close and the result in doubt. Mr. Rhoads has a very strong following and there is a possibility of his election. At this writing (1 p. m.) Hunter is about 80 votes ahead, with six townships to hear from, four of which will probably give a Rhoads majority.

Saturday Night.

The thoroughfares were thronged on Saturday night with a gay and excited multitude—gay in new clothes of bright color and excited about the latest party or ball, or perhaps only about politics.

How the intoxicating beverages flowed. The doors of saloons, as they were opened for an instant, revealed a scene of revelry. Men lay on either side of the street, weary and overcome with the effects of the fiery liquid. Thus they demonstrated the privileges of manhood and proved themselves to be but beasts.

Politics was the principal subject discussed. So far as we can learn all the candidates will be elected.

The lovers were among the multitude. They appeared happy as they passed along absorbed in each other's affections.

Young ladies singly and in groups promenaded the streets unaccompanied by gentlemen escorts.

The stores were attractive. The windows are filled with handsome goods, which are pretty to look at even if the beholder cannot afford to purchase.

Monte Ward.

The Lock Haven Journal refers to our well known friend and townsman, Mr. Monte Ward, in the following words:

"Mr. Monte Ward, the most celebrated base ball pitcher in the country and for five years pitcher in the Providence club, came home yesterday to attend the funeral of his niece, Julia Fleming Ward, who was buried this afternoon. Mr. Ward has signed with the New York club next year for $3,000, and he says it feels like going away from home to leave Providence. Mr. Ward has many friends here who are glad to see him on the ground where he first developed his wonderful adaptation and ability at pitching a curved ball. We remember him well in many amateur games, and how, as he got more and more on the curve, he astonished the boys. We welcome him home to his old tramping ground, and although the errand that called him here is a sad one, we hope his stay will be pleasant."

A Simple Experiment.

We read the following in an exchange last evening:

Take a silver table spoon, tie a string of cotton or silk around the handle, wrap the ends of the string around the index fingers, put the ends of the fingers in your ears, and then let the spoon strike any solid object. The result will be a delightful musical concert resembling in tone a chime of many bells. The result was accidentally discovered the other day, but there is no patent on it.

We immediately procured a piece of cotton thread and not having a silver tablespoon convenient, attached the thread in the manner indicated to an ordinary silver teaspoon, allowing the spoon to strike the stove. The result proved highly satisfactory, and have no doubt a heavy tablespoon would add volume to the melody. It is remarkably like the chime of bells.

—We learn from the Lock Haven Journal that on Thursday evening Senator Peale, of Lock Haven, attended a Democratic meeting at Tylersville, Clinton county. He tied his span of spirited horses to a hitching post, and went inside the hall to serve his party for his country's good. Ahem! After the meeting the team was missing. Investigation proved that one of the horses had broken a bridle bit, supposed to have been cracked. The team actually traveled after night without damaging anything or anybody particularly, a distance of seven miles to Brush Valley, in this county, and walked into the barn yard of John Hubler.

—The woolen factory of Oak Hall, conducted by our friend, Mr. J. G. Irvin, is one of the most prosperous institutions in that vicinity. Its facilities for accomplishing superior work have lately been greatly increased by the addition of new dye tubs and a new engine to its mechanical equipment. The process of dyeing by steam accomplishes the work in a much more rapid and satisfactory manner than formerly. We are happy to record that everything about the factory is moving on smoothly and works like a charm.

—The Altoona Times, the new Democratic newspaper, representing the thriving city whose name it bears, is already in trouble. The editor-in-chief, Mr. A. J. Greer, was recently knocked down and shamefully abused because he criticised some of his dishonest Democratic brethren, and has since been deposed from his high position because he is too independent to edit a Democratic newspaper.

—A Bible class, to meet every Wednesday evening after the usual prayer-meeting, has been organized in connection with the Episcopal church.

—The village of Lemont has now what it long needed—a well-kept hotel, over which presides an agreeable, gentlemanly proprietor. Mr. Isaac Armstrong, the gentleman who fills this position, is well known. He was a soldier and a member of Gen. Beaver's regiment, the 148th. For ten years he was engaged in Dale's woolen factory. His health failing, he became the proprietor of the hotel, and that hostelry is now reaping the benefits of good management. The weary wayfarer who stops with him is given a comfortable room and invited to partake of excellent, well-cooked food. Such treatment sends him on his way rejoicing.
